School Bus Safety Resources for Parents, Teachers and Bus Drivers

This long-standing safety page provides tips for parents in teaching their children about walking to the bus stop, waiting for the bus and how to behave on the bus. There are activities to help teachers share these concepts with students. There are also resources for school bus drivers.

NORTH CAROLINA CROSSING SIGNAL

Effective January 1, 2016 North Carolina school districts will be using a standard crossing signal to help protect students when they need to cross the street to board the bus or after exiting the bus. The school bus driver will first hold palm out indicating that students should WAIT before stepping into the roadway. After the driver has checked for safety, he or she will then give students a “thumbs up” indicating that the students should then check for traffic and then cross the street. The driver will indicate the direction to walk by pointing with his or her index finger.
